

Magic Clay:

Standing in a circle the leader begins by holding an imaginary ball of clay. He/She then molds the clay into a usable object and then displays using it, once the nature of the object is obvious, the leader makes the object back into a ball of clay and passes it onto the left. Each person, in turn molds the magic clay into an object. This is an excellent game for learning to use body and imagination without words.