

Walk Into the Circle:

This game is not as helpful for learning names, but it's an excellent way to relax a group and establish a fun atmosphere. Everyone stands in a circle. The leader begins by walking into the center of the circle modeling a particular walk (can be funny, straightforward, whatever). When they get to the center of the circle, they look around the circle, wave to the group and say "Hi, my name is _." The person then does their walk back to their place in the circle. Everyone else then mimics the person's walk into the center of the circle. When they reach the center, they turn to the person, wave in unison and say, "Hi ____" They then return to their places in the circle. One by one, moving around the circle to the left, participants walk a special walk into the circle, say hi, return, and the group copies them.